

The IRS AND DISABILITY: What can you deduct as a medical expense?

"An item ordinarily used for personal, living, and family purposes (e.g., an electric can opener) will be recognized as an item purchased primarily for medical care...only if it is readily apparent that it prevents or alleviates a disease or disability."

What You Can Deduct as a Medical Expense:

From <http://www.irs.gov/pub/irs-pdf/p907.pdf>

The following list highlights some of the medical expenses you can include in figuring your medical expense deduction. Artificial limbs, braces, contact lenses, eyeglasses, and hearing aids. The part of the cost of Braille books and magazines that is more than the price of regular printed editions. The cost and repair of special telephone equipment for hearing impaired persons. Grants for homes designed for wheelchair living; Cost and maintenance of a wheelchair or a three-wheel motor vehicle; Cost and care of a guide dog or other animal aiding a person with a physical disability; Premiums for qualified long-term care insurance, up to certain amounts; Improvements to a home that do not increase its value if the main purpose is medical care. (An example is constructing entrance or exit ramps). **
